Event Design International is an event management and marketing company that assists its clients with building relationships with customers, prospects and employees through meaningful events. With the advent of social media, customers and employees now, more than ever, have the power to drive new first-time customers to an organization through their testimonials and recommendations. EDI creates and produces live events which serve as a means for customers and prospects to communicate one-to-one with people in the organization who can provide solutions or serve as a sounding board for new ideas. In response to organizations economic and environmental concerns EDI also creates and produces virtual events and conferences which offer 3D and chat features, the next best thing to face-to-face events.

EDI services organizations from both the public and private sectors. EDI also operates offices in Columbus, Houston, Los Angeles, and Kentucky, EDI. For more information visit EDI's website at <http://www.edievent.com>.
